

Introducing Adrian Robinson

Adrian was born in Rotorua in 1965. He left school at 15 with a top mark in School Certificate of 32%! (As he states – "He was over school!"). He joined the workforce at 15, and completed an apprenticeship in radiator repairs at 18.

Adrian then went to work at a company called Trackweld where he worked as a mechanic and engineer in the heavy machinery field. Apart from 2 yrs in Australia, where he worked as a builders labourer and a "presser" in the wool sheds of Western NSW, plus a stint as a sales rep for Trackweld as a TimberJack, Adrian's career has been in the heavy machinery or radiator industry all his life.

At 41 he sold his house to purchase his own business based in Rotorua (Ace Radiators 2006 Ltd). Two years later he found himself getting sick and tired of working very long hours on his own in his workshop!

When Adrian was first shown ACN through people in the industry he got super excited at the opportunity – and, finally finding something he felt he'd been looking for! With a natural love for meeting new people and talking to others Adrian states "being able to make money doing this was a no brainer to me!".

"I am currently engaged to my partner Sandra & am looking forward to an amazing next few years as I build out my ACN business to a position where I can travel and enjoy life with Sandra and our 3 children without having to worry about time & money." - Having looked at countless opportunities in his life, Adrian adds ... "nothing has compared to what I have seen and experienced with ACN. My flag is well and truly planted in this opportunity!"
